

Charlie the Clever Crow:

The Bread-Stealing Adventure

In a big, bustling city lived a clever crow
named Charlie, always seeking adventure.

One day, he spotted other birds trying to reach a delicious piece of bread on a tall
building.

The bread was too high, and the birds
were puzzled, so Charlie flew down to ask what was wrong.

They explained the bread was out of reach, but Charlie
quickly thought of a clever idea.

He quickly flew to a nearby alley and found a long, sturdy stick, picking it up with his beak.

Calling out, Charlie
asked the other birds
to hold onto the stick
while he flew up with the bread.

The birds were
hesitant at first but,
trusting Charlie's
cleverness, they agreed to help.

Together, they flew up,
and Charlie carefully
used the stick to reach the delicious bread.

With great teamwork,
they brought the bread
down, and the birds
cheered with joy!

But their celebration
was cut short as
mischievous monkeys
approached, eyeing
the tasty bread.

Charlie quickly thought of another plan, telling the birds to gather sticks and leaves.

He then flew to the monkeys, telling them
they were building
forts and the bread
was a prize.

The monkeys' competitive spirit took over, and they eagerly started gathering fort materials.

While the monkeys
were busy, Charlie and
the birds quickly
grabbed the bread and flew away!

They enjoyed the delicious bread
together, celebrating Charlie's cleverness
and their newfound
friendship.
